B. SC. LOGISTICS MANAGEMENT

Why complete a dual studies programme? And why logistics?
The logistics world is a growing, modern and forward-looking industry.
At SOVEREIGN in Hamburg, you will get a direct insight into this exciting world.

At the HSBA, you can directly combine proven theory with exciting practical experience, as you are not just dragged from department to department, but you become an established member of the planning team from the start and you acquire the skills and knowledge associated with becoming a forwarding merchant. You will book orders, track shipments, generate prices and have contact with both customers and suppliers. This acquired knowledge will provide with a good basic understanding of the other areas of the business for later on.

As a dual student, you will also have the opportunity to take part in various projects and you can take a look at the different departments within the company in order to determine for yourself which direction you would like your studies to take.

At the HSBA, you will learn the theoretical basics of your bachelor's degree in seminars of approx. 15 to 25 students. The lecturers work in the business and logistics industries themselves and are able to call on their personal experiences to connect the theoretical with the real world, even from the lecture room.

You will also have the opportunity to take the freight forwarding and logistics salesperson training exam. For this additional qualification, we offer attendance at an exam preparation course.

Moritz T., 23, Dual Studies Bachelor of Science Logistics Management and vocational training as freight forwarding and logistics salesperson, completed 2015, Station Manager SOVEREIGN Speed Vienna

'Especially as you are just starting out in your professional career, it is important that the nature of the company is right for you and that you feel that you are in good hands. And that's definitely just the way I felt after the first day. SOVEREIGN puts its trust in you and assigns self-responsibility. I had the opportunity very soon to take part in various projects for management and the pricing team.'

Neele B., 24, third year of training, dual studies programme, SOVEREIGN Speed Hamburg

'From as early as my trial day, I had the feeling that a very relaxed approach to business prevailed and that you could just be yourself. About the course: Naturally, it's very demanding. Everyone should be clear about that before starting a dual studies programme. However, my wish for greater practical relevance was definitely fulfilled. The professors have backgrounds in business and logistics and are able, whenever they teach you something new, to explain where it can be fully applied and what this looks like in real life. I find that really important.'

Sven G., 22, second year of training, dual studies programme, SOVEREIGN Courier Hamburg

'I previously completed a regular study programme at a state university. For me, this was always too one-dimensional. I find it better whenever you are learning in small groups with a greater relevance to real life than is the case at the HSBA. I also like the fact that at SOVEREIGN you are free to decide what area of business you want to become more involved in – and there's a relatively big choice here.'
